LIGHTNING SEWER

THE NEW WILSON Oscillating Shuttle SEWING MACHINE

Is wonderful in its conception, unprecedented for doing a large range of sewing in textile fabrics and leather. Its motions are continuous, admitting of an extraordinary rate of speed, either by steam or foot power. Every motion of the treadle makes six stitches, thus producing about one-third more work in a day than other Sewing Machines. It has no stop motions, and tightens the stitch with the needle out of the fabric. It uses the well-known Wilson Compound Feed on both sides of the needle. It has two-thirds less parts than any other first-class Sewing Machine.
Its arm is fully eight and one-half inches long and five and one-half inches high, and the whole Machine is very compactly and scientifically constructed in proportions, elegance, design and appearance. Its simple, powerful and perfect mechanism places it as far in advance of all other Sewing Machines as the telephone is superior to the tin speaking tube. The WILSON MENDING ATTACHMENT, for repairing all kinds of textile fabrics WITHOUT PATCHING, furnished FREE with all WILSON SEWING MACHINES, together with a Tucker, Ruffler, Corder, Set of Hemmers, Blindor, etc.

Gen. Gary's Reply to Haskell.

A correspondent of the News and Courier anxious to know what Gen. Gary had to say about the letter of Col. Haskell, proceeded to Elginfield C. H., to interview him on Saturday. He found the General calmly seated in his office apparently less rattled about the recent attack of Col. Haskell than the public seemed to be. In answer to the Reporter, he said that he regarded Col. Haskell's attack as a rude and covert one, and a well-planned attempt to shift the issue and change the actors. But he will not be decoyed into it by answering Col. Haskell and giving him the prominence he seeks.

If Senator Hampton wishes to continue the controversy, he is willing to do so on any field he may select. He says that all that he has stated as facts in reference to him, derived from his own knowledge, he reiterates as true, and all that he has obtained from others he believes to be true.

He says further: "If Senator Hampton is not satisfied and wants to go on with this discussion, if he wishes to wash all the dirty linen of the party in public, and let it be known who has and who has not done these things, I am ready to go into a thorough investigation touching all these matters. I am also willing to submit the public and private character of Senator Hampton and myself to a thorough investigation. This is the glove that I throw down, and if it is taken up by Senator Hampton, I shall say, 'Lay on Macdaff, and damned be he who first cries hold, enough!'"

As to Col. Haskell's charges against himself personally, he denies them all. He says that these charges, both against Gen. Butler and himself, are stale, having already been put up by the Radicals five years ago and publicly disproven. He says that the charge about the Blue Ridge Railroad and the Tax-payers Convention is as false as it is malicious. He says instead of one of the indictments against McDuff being for fraudulently paying to him a large sum of County money, that a fee for legal services to the amount of $500 was reported by Chancellor Carroll as a reasonable one, and confirmed by the Circuit Judge. The charge that he advocated putting Whitehead in Butler's place, he also pronounces as false. His denial to that charge can be seen on the Journal of the Senate and also on the files of the Columbia Register. On the contrary he says:

"Instead of trying to withdraw Gen. Butler, it is well-known that when he was virtually deserted by Hampton and others who should have supported him, I, at his request, gave him my support and assisted in defeating the Patterson resolutions, which, if they had passed, would have placed him in the awkward position of an ingrate by forcing him to take the initiative step to unseat Patterson whose vote and influence helped to secure Butler's seat and defeated the claims of Corbin.

I have again answered these stale charges, which originally sprung from my Radical opponents, and I am now willing for the public to decide as to their truth or falsity. I will say, in conclusion, that I have never sold out the State to the fraudulent bondholders; I have made no bargains with Radicals in State or National politics, nor made compromises with them in any way whatever, nor do I belong to any ring in the Democratic party."

"Insanity is increasing among the women of America." Don't believe it, exclaims the Norristown Herald; the women of America don't drag along skirts over the dirty sidewalks as they did only a year ago; nor do they go along and every now and then make a frantic dive for a fist full of trail which is dexterously lifted by the left foot.

Editor Orangeburg Times:

I notice a few flashes from the brilliant writer Paysan of the Fork, in which he assumes to speak for the Legislature when he states that since the removal of James Brown, Trial Justice, that peace reigns supreme, rendering Trial Justice a nuisance.

Now Mr. Editor, I regret to say that while I pen this article, here in the "Fork," Willow Township, a Coroner's Jury is endeavoring to find the perpetrators of one of the most diabolical murders in the annals of old Orangeburg, where a company of Turpentine negroes went in mass to a private residence and there without the color of cause fired fifteen or twenty shots at a peaceable young man while fleeing for his life, sending two balls through his brain. This looks like quietude in the Fork. But Paysan knows of course the necessities of the Fork, and I think Mr. Editor that he should be sent to the next Legislature as the embodiment of the Orangeburg delegation. I feel satisfied that he would devise some plan to rid the State of law courts, jails, penitentiaries &c., and bring about that millennium so much desired by all.

If Paysan and friends mistook a Radical Trial Justice for a Democrat, that is only a political blunder of theirs which does not warrant Paysan's universal repudiation of Trial Justice.

THE MIDNIGHT LINE.

Union Meeting.

On February 27th 1880, the Orangeburg Missionary Union will hold its next session with the St. George's Church, Colleton County. Rev. D. W. Cuttino is to preach the Introductory sermon, and Rev. R. J. Edwards the Charity sermon. Bro. R. S. Weeks is to write an Essay on a subject of his own choice. Subject for discussion, "How shall we bear each others burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ," to be opened by Bro. M. W. Kenyon, who is also appointed to read an Essay on "Baptism" by Dean Stanley.

D. W. CUTTINO,
Moderator.

W. J. SNIDER,
Clerk.

Public School Teachers.

The Lancaster Ledger, in dilating upon the examination of public school teachers, makes the following sensible comment:

"We do not hesitate to say that the present mode of examination does an injustice to many applicants. The questions propounded in many instances are superfluous, and one would judge that from their character it must have taken the State Board of Examiners at least a month to study them up. It is required of all applicants to answer to a 't,' without reflection, the questions submitted. And if answered correctly, the majority of these questions are not a true status by which to judge the competency of a teacher. History and geography is a matter of memory, which an ordinary teacher can impart, because he has the books before him. A teacher may be perfect in grammar and arithmetic, the two most important branches taught in our public schools, and be deficient in memory of events in history, such as: 'Who were the Pilgrims, and where did they land?'"

The Best Wealth.

The great struggle with civilized men in this world is for wealth. This is called the prime good, the one thing needful, the great desideratum of life. So men toil for it, persevere, cheat, defraud for it. They give time, strength and, too often, good health for it. The truth is, the estimate put upon wealth is too high. It is not the great good, not the pearl of great price. It is not the best thing man can have. It does not confer peace of mind, nor purity of heart, heartfelt happiness, nor contentment, nor joy, nor social blessedness, nor any of the solid and enduring enjoyments. Wealthy homes are often no happier than those of the poor and comfortable livers. Poverty is always an evil, but a fair supply of the necessities and comforts of life is quite as apt to confer real peace as great wealth.

It is not gold, nor goods, therefore, that make man really wealthy. The best wealth is of the heart, an enlightened mind, a loyal conscience, pure affection. He is wealthiest who has the largest stock of wisdom, virtue, and love, whose heart beats with warm sympathies for his fellow-man; who finds good in all seasons, all providences, and all men. The generous man who pities the unfortunate, the poor man who orders well his life, the loving man who clings closely to his friends, the studious man who seeks instruction in all things—these are the truly wealthy men.—Extract.

The Rise in Provisions.

The rise in provisions is becoming oppressive. Think of a peck of pearl grits bringing 40 cents. Here is $1.60 per bushel. We do not find it necessary to enumerate further instances, as all classes of provisions have traveled up in the same way. All we have to ask is, what reason can there be for all this? Nothing but crazy headed, wicked speculation in the necessities of life. At all events, it shows the necessity of every man who can make his own bread-stuff doing so and not to be caught in a corner on the staff of life. Of course there are those, whose interest it is, who will discourage the possibility of our own people making bread and meat in competition with the West. This is good talk for railroad men, but we have often heard, and we are fast enough to believe it, that "bought corn can't fatten a horse," and we have seen many a mule which was fed on "bought corn" go so blind that you could look in its eyes a week and it would never wink.

It pays to draw corn from the West, but the farmer knows who it pays, and he knows better still who it don't. All cotton and no corn makes the biggest kind of a fool of a man we have ever seen. A cotton planter who has to buy corn and finds it going up faster than he can call the figures has not the judgment of a blind goose with a fox after it.—Ex.

Rest for the Weary.

What a strange thought! All this restless world is seeking rest. Those who drag their weary bodies home night after night, and fall down upon restless beds, worried with the anxieties and cares of business, are yet seeking rest, rest. It is not found in poverty; perhaps it lurks under the rich man, who all the while lies groaning upon his couch or stands with wrinkled brow, perplexed with care. Where is rest? What is rest? It is the divine principle of peace within that comes from God. As well seek roses upon the pallid cheek of death as rest out of God. The needle never rests till it turns to the pole. If a little child is frightened at his play, he comes running into the house to mother. She takes him to her bosom, presses kisses upon his brow, and while she sings some lullaby of love, all fear fades from his face and he sleeps in peace. God wants to be a mother for the whole world. If it be misfortune or poverty, or gloomy foreboding that makes one unhappy, God can give him rest, and breathe a lullaby of love above his tempest tossed soul that will still its raging. Rest, peace, is a principle that lies within us and not without. Some, possessing it, have rejoiced in their rags and poverty; others not possessing it, have found a crowned head uneasy. O that every anxious, longing heart would look away to him who walks among the golden lamps of Heaven! "Take my yoke up on you and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

Jay Gould only made $15,000,000 last year. Poor fellow!
